

What does your customer want?

What do you do, offer, or sell? This description and the header above should simply and clearly answer these two questions: 1. What do you do? 2. How does it make my life better?

How does your product/service solve your customer's problem?

Briefly describe how your product or service solves your customer's problem. This is where you can describe what it is.

For example, if you sell an online course, this is where you could describe what the course is about. Are your customers going to learn how to hold their breath for three minutes? Who are the instructors?

This is not a place for you to put pricing or what's included in their purchase or subscription. That comes later. Think of an iPhone: it's a phone with a fancy camera. This section is to talk about the fancy camera and features. You'll get to reveal the price and what's in the box later. Not here.

Testimonials

I struggled to create my website for months! But when I discovered ClearBrand's Pre-Built WordPress Website, everything changed. I was able to get my new website up and running in a few hours. I love it! And I finally have a website that's making me money!

Happy Customer

What you get

- This is a clear description of what people get when they buy
- This is essentially, "what's in the box," for your product or service.
- It's also good to mix in positive results your customers will experience, especially if you include some good emotions.
- Bullet points are fine
- Then wrap up with a call to action, like this:

You get all this, plus the confidence you're living your best life when you purchase PRODUCT today!

At ClearBrand, we believe entrepreneurs can change the world. They create incredible products and services the world needs. But often, they don't have the time or expertise to engage in marketing that scales their company successfully.

We help service-based companies get more leads and sales with StoryBrand websites and marketing that works. So they can sell to more people and make the world better with their products and services.
