Government contracting is big business.

The U.S. Government remains the world's largest single purchaser of goods and services.

In Fiscal Year 2022 alone, the U.S. Government spent about $694 billion on contracts.

Government contracting is different than commercial contracting.

Government contractors capture work, perform it, protect IP, manage their workforce, enter into teaming agreements and joint ventures, and acquire and sell assets differently than purely commercial companies. Claims and disputes with the U.S. Government – the ultimate 800lb gorilla – are not like commercial litigation.

Ward & Berry is a boutique law firm built to provide exceptional representation to government contractors.

Our attorneys understand the government contracting industry: its people, its processes, and its legal challenges. We have the experience, security clearances, and relationships to represent our clients in their most sensitive legal matters, exciting growth opportunities, and serious corporate threats. We always seek creative and efficient solutions to any obstacles our clients may face. But if those obstacles are unavoidable, we fight for our clients. And we fight to win.

Ward & Berry caters to the needs of our clients with the attention that they deserve. We value long-term relationships and work tirelessly to learn our clients' business and earn their trust.
