

How many of your drivers currently have a suspended license?

The answer may surprise you.

Driving with a suspended license is the most commonly committed offense in America.

Over 1.8 million licenses get suspended every year in Florida. With just over 15 million drivers, that's 12% of all licensed Florida drivers.

Most companies order motor vehicle records for their employees once or twice per year. This is not sufficient to prevent unlicensed drivers from getting behind the wheel.

License suspensions, crashes, traffic tickets, and other license sanctions can go undetected for months.

A driver with an invalid license can be pulled over, and your vehicle stranded. Worse, when a driver with license problems crashes, the result is substantial liability for your company.
