

It's All About The Community

Saving money is just a nice perk

When our founder moved to Charlotte it was a major transition period in his life— right in the middle of a slew of major life changes. He picked up a new job, went to a new city, starting over with friends, and trying to start a new life.

One of the first things he did— bought a big house. Yea, big mistake. He was house rich, but community poor.

Feeling somewhat isolated, he naturally started looking for like-kind people to share his home with. One room at a time, he filled each room in the house with people in similar life transitions— professionals in transition, with similar schedules and a comparable outlook on life.

I didn't realize I was doing it at the time, but I turned my "big "mistake into something truly powerful. Many of my tenants have now become some of my best friends.

More importantly, they've shown us here at Community Room Rental how much you can flourish in the context of the right community. In the end, it doesn't matter what the little society is built around — church, working out, philanthropy, sports, the arts, or even a common home. You won't find another community like this anywhere.

Why Be A Part of Our Community?

- Inspiration and motivation – in strong communities there is always someone doing something amazing (if not many people!), if not organically (workout groups, international mixers, pub crawls, movie night, social dinners, networking events, etc.) then organized by me (i.e. Valentines party, group spartan race, etc.), which can have the effect of inspiring you to go harder and achieve bigger goals.
- Shared lessons – rather than having to learn from your own mistakes or successes you can reach out to the community and ask if anyone has had an experience that could be valuable to your situation.
- Contacts – in life and in business you are always in need of a particular service/support or may like to meet a particular person. When you are involved in a community it is highly likely that someone you know will be able to make an introduction for you.
- Opportunities – successful people are always doing cool stuff and when you are associated with them you often get to go along for the ride. Whether it's a social activity, a once in a lifetime experience or a business opportunity, there is always an opportunity to be had.

- Fun – we are social animals and when you are part of a community there are always social aspects involved that you can have a lot of fun at.

Our Fans

I thought I wanted to live on my own, but the reality is I just didn't want to go through the hassle of finding a good room mate. Someone with common interests that's not out partying all night. I'm a professional and don't need that in my life. Now I'm a part of a great social, athletic, professional community that encourages the most out of me. - Frank, 30

People are social creatures. It's simply a human trait. Whether we are introverts or extroverts, shy or gregarious, we need to know that we are part of a common group. We need to feel that we have others with whom we connect and who share commonalities. I love feeling accepted as a piece of a greater puzzle where we look out for each other; support each other's needs, and simply have a great time together! - Susan,
