THE Firehouse Restaurant has a new summer menu that's more sizzling than its name suggests.

With Australian cuisine and four different types of steaks, there's sure to be something to satisfy all tastebuds. The restaurant also has weekly specials, including chilli mussels Tuesdays, and pizza and pasta delights on Fridays and Saturdays.

This is complemented by an a-la-carte and full-buffet breakfast, which is available every day of the week. Firehouse Restaurant not only offered fantastic food and service, but also an enjoyable dining experience.

"We offer friendly service and fresh W/A produce, we have a great wine list and a changing seasonal menu," she said. "Outside there is also really nice poolside alfresco dining, which is stunning in summer while inside the restaurant has a really nice ambience."

The restaurant caters for functions of up to 20 people, with private dining rooms available.

PERTH MONTESSORI

TWELVE to 18 years old is a difficult period of instability as adolescents search for an ideal model to follow.

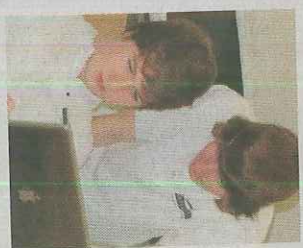

They strive for independence and social growth, as their focus changes to relationships and the larger environment.

Montessori believes students need two things:

protection during their difficult physical and emotional transitions and an understanding of the society they would soon be entering.

A Montessori upper education ensures students make the connection between learning and living a purposeful adult life.

PETER HUGHES BURN FOUNDATION

AFTER surviving the Bali bombings in October 2002, Peter Hughes started the Peter Hughes Burn Foundation.

The charity exists to meet the needs of burn survivors and their families in times of trauma.

This year, the public is being invited to attend the foundation's inaugural Corporate Golf Day and High Tea event. The event has been designed to get women involved just as much as the men.

While the men prove their ability on the Maylands Peninsula course, women can join Lisa Scattoli, Shelley Taylor-Smith and paralympian Jessica Smith for an indulgent and inspiring high tea.

At the end of the day, both groups will come together and enjoy dinner and drinks while raising money for an extraordinary cause.

There are already 250 people attending the event, but tickets are still available.

"I just want everyone to come along and have a good time and learn about the Peter Hughes Burn Foundation, that's the bottom line," Peter Hughes said.

Tickets are $100 for high tea and dinner.

To be a part of this fantastic day and raise money for a worth cause, visit perthhughesburnfoundation.org.au.
