Your customers are exposed to a growing number of zero day threats each and every day.

With traditional AV solutions unable to detect much of this malware you are facing a problem you are unable to see and unable to defend against.

Do you know if you have suffered a breach or attack? With many unable to afford or run the advanced detection and forensics tools many are in the dark as to how big the problem is.

In the event of a breach or even just a ransomware attack on the network, how much of your time will be involved in searching for and finding remediation tools?

WHAT IS THE SOLUTION AND HOW DOES IT WORK?

Custodian 360 is powered by AVR International Limited allowing us to centrally manage your customers endpoints. Our analysts get alerted to all threats as soon as they are detected by our behavioural analysis agent and they are trained to analyse the threat quickly and effectively.

When threats are detected, we are able to stop them in their tracks regardless of whether they are conventional malware, file less, browser or network threats ensuring the safety of your customers.

A report follows after detection detailing the threat and what actions have been taken and what remediation steps have been taken too. You can then brand this report and send on to your customers

In the event of a ransomware attack that did manage to encrypt some files before being stopped, we can recover files in a matter of seconds, returning them to the exact state they were in prior to encryption.
