

OUR MANIFESTO

15 Principles for the distinctive contribution of history to the development of young people

In 2014, the general assembly of EUROCLIO unanimously adopted a manifesto with principles for high-quality history, heritage and citizenship education. This manifesto on preventing the misuses of the past, promoting an inclusive approach to the study of the past and advancing educational innovation.

The manifesto is available in multiple languages at www.euroclio.eu/manifesto

How can history teaching change today?

EUROCLIO

European Association of History Educators

WHO WE ARE

A community of educators who are committed to continuously improve the way history is being taught.

EUROCLIO is the European Association of History Educators. It was established in 1992 with support of the Council of Europe. EUROCLIO is run by a professional secretariat in The Hague, which is supervised by an international board. This board is elected by those EUROCLIO member organisations that applied for full membership and have a democratic structure themselves.

WHAT WE DO

EUROCLIO promotes innovative and responsible history education through professional development, the development of open education resources, research, advocacy and acting as a hub.

TRAINING

EUROCLIO organises international training courses, active workshops, on-site learning and opportunities for networking. The EUROCLIO Annual Conference is the most international training course for history educators, with usually more than 30 different countries being represented.

ACTIVE WORKSHOP

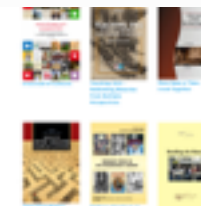

INTERNATIONAL PARTICIPANTS

EDUCATIONAL RESOURCES

EUROCLIO supports the collaborative design of directly applicable educational resources that promote active learning and historical thinking. The development, piloting and peer-review is typically done by people with different cultural and professional backgrounds to build on different experiences.

ADVOCACY

EUROCLIO advocates for high-quality history, heritage and citizenship education on both the European and international levels. EUROCLIO acts as a intermediary between the history educators community in Europe and intergovernmental organisations as the Council of Europe, the EU and UNESCO.

CONSULTATION

EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT

FUNDRAISING

EUROCLIO uses part of its operational budget to raise funds for projects and initiatives aimed at increasing its impact. EUROCLIO has been supported amongst others by the European Commission, Open Society Foundations, and the Ministries of Foreign Affairs of Austria, Belgium, Denmark, The Netherlands and Norway.

RESEARCH

EUROCLIO conducts research to assess the needs of those teaching and learning history, heritage and citizenship, using surveys, focus-groups and interviews. The research findings drive the work of the Association and are used as evidence for advocacy and fundraising.

FOCUS GROUP

OUR FOCUS

EUROCLIO wants for all history educators to be inspired and able to help develop their students into responsible, active and critical citizens.

Because of this, we work with educators to create the conditions to make this possible. We do this, for example, by supporting our member associations to be effective civil society organisations, -by developing educational resources that motivate students to learn about that are important for today, -by finding ways to address difficult histories in a way that they connect, rather than divide.

HISTORIANA

Access quality history education resources that are free to use and are adaptable.

Historiana is a free online educational tool designed to support high quality history, heritage and citizenship education. The development of Historiana is led by a community of professional volunteers and supported by EUROCLIO and professional web developers (Webtic). Historiana offers access to a variety of resources, such as transnational source collections and ready to use learning activities, but also enables users to create their own eLearning Activities in their own language through easy to use apps designed specifically to help promote historical thinking.
