The versatility and economic attractiveness of plastics has engendered a renaissance in the use of this material in all aspects of interior design and finishing. First realized during the "Golden Age" of modernistic design in the 1950s, the interior architectural and design opportunities to be realized by the creative use of plastics is limitless, and is only curtailed by the imagination of our clients and in-house technicians. Combining the vast array of characteristics that plastic can bring to the design table with other materials such as metals, wood, glass, fabric, colour and lighting creates endless opportunities for innovation. Creative and original approaches by trained designers and technicians at Peregrine Plastics ensure our customers are at the leading edge of current practices.

The innovations in furniture design initiated by legends such as Arne Jacobsen, Charles and Ray Eames and Robin Day often utilized the benefits of plastic, in combination with wood, fabric, ceramics, glass or metal. The ability of plastic to bend and curve into organic, colourful and pleasing shapes, and to still contain high degrees of strength and integrity, makes it an ideal manufacturing material. The design and creation of office, business and home furniture, lighting lenses and pipes, domes, signing, shelving, displays, decorative panels and fixtures are only a small part of the products we have fabricated for the homes, offices and businesses of our clients.
