Remodeling or building a home without an interior designer? We can help!

Homeowners often want to do their own interior design when building or remodeling a home. However, interior designers provide specifications that contractors need when implementing things from structural changes to installing new faucets or tile. Without services typically provided by interior designers, individual sub contractors are unable to proceed with their work or to bid the project correctly. We are interior designers that will take clients' interior design ideas and plans and turn them into drawings, schedules and specifications that are required for a successful, on-budget build or remodel, as well as provide them with the resources they'll need to do things themselves.

Without the proper drawings and specifications, it is easy for projects to become late and over budget. Let our firm, which has delivered XX projects over XX years, help you keep things on track.
