A comprehensive solution to gut health

Gut health is central to the overall wellbeing of every animal. This “second brain” is responsible for the most critical functions – the digestive and immune systems. It is where nutrients are absorbed and it is where disease causing organisms are stopped.

In a post-antibiotic world, efforts are to support gut health through one avenue or another. We think there’s a better way. We bring together a collection of approaches, for a single stable solution that supports robust biome and healthy animal gut, reducing the impact of stresses and increases your production.

The elements brought together in every Lumensa product

Lumensa is a natural feed additive composed of a synergistic blend of functional compounds.

Fermentation metabolites

Amino acids, organic acids, carbohydrates, exopolysaccharides.

Our multi-stage fermentation process creates a diverse set of metabolites that influence growth performance, intestinal microbiome and animal performance.

Complexed minerals

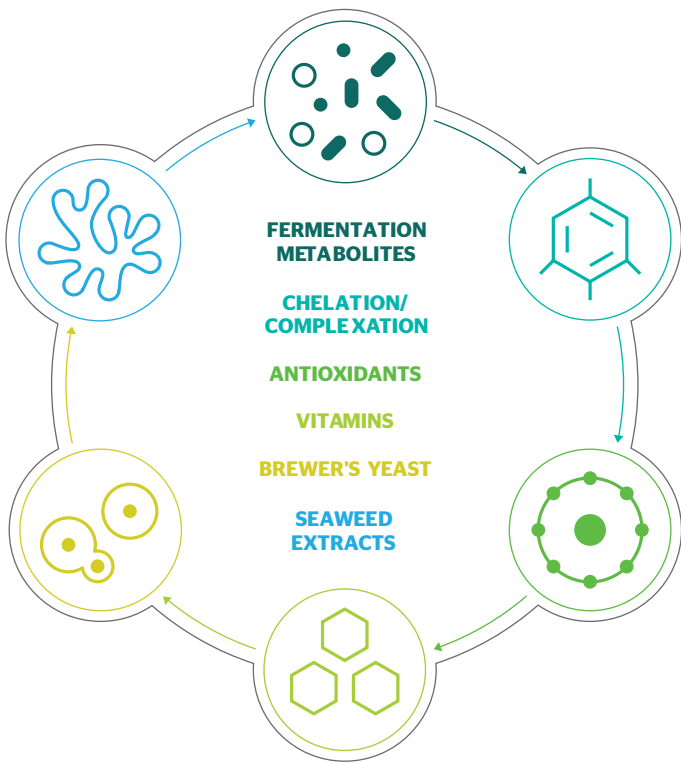

Selenium, copper, iron, manganese, molybdenum, zinc, iodine.

Our selection of minerals combined with amino acids for better absorption and aids in every stage of production. Minerals act as co-enzymes in many metabolic processes and protect beneficial microbes and the digestive system.

Brewer’s yeast

Amino acids, B-vitamins, mineral nutrients, polysaccharides, nucleotides.

The combination of active ingredients increases weight gain, supports digestibility of calcium and phosphorus, and increases protein retention.

Seaweed extracts

Amino acids, polysaccharides, phenolic compounds, betaines.

Obtained from organically certified seaweed extracts to support intestinal micobiome and performance.
