

Sickhead Games Company Wordpress Site

We need a new company site for an established game development studio in Dallas, Texas. It should be a much more professional look than we have now, but we still want it to be a bit fun. It needs to be built so we can add more content later (as we publish new games, gain new clients, etc).

This could be built as a single page, multi-page, or a hybrid design. The design must scale to fit desktop and mobile browsers. This job will require that the website be both designed and coded in Wordpress.

Your design should include at least the following areas:

- Main Landing Area
 - The company logo.
 - Basic company info with a call to action.
 - Twitter feed integration for news.
 - Social media links.
- Games Area
 - Section for games we have developed (logos and links).
 - Second section for games we have ported (logos and links).
 - This area should be designed to expand to many games.
- Services Area
 - Two or three paragraphs of text.
 - A few images related to our services.
 - FAQ about our services.
- Contact Area
 - One or two paragraphs of text.
 - Contact form.
- About Area
 - Two or three paragraphs about the company.
 - A few images about the company.

We will provide the final text and images to use on the site once a winning design is selected.

Style and Content:

Again we need a more professional, modern, and more minimalist look than our current site, but are not opposed to something fun. We want to retain our current logo (included in the download). We know the name of the company is offbeat, but please avoid anything gross, dark, or violent, as professionalism is key. Leaning on our past projects is a good idea because we've worked with some very reputable game developers.
