the annual event. Energy together candidates in a conference and present research on family problems, gender violence, entrepreneurship, and other topics of relevance to the community. The evening is followed by a reception and a presentation of the award. The award is presented by the President of the University of the Pacific, the Vice-Chancellor, the Dean of the Faculty of Education, and the Dean of the Faculty of Arts. The award is presented to the winner of the competition. The award is presented to the winner of the competition. The award is presented to the winner of the competition.

TARGET AUDIENCE

This activity is intended for cardiologists, cardiologists-in-training, family medicine practitioners, geriatricians, endocrinologists, dietician-nutritionists, physician assistants, currently-researching and/or all members of the interventional team and any other healthcare professionals engaged in the care of patients with PAD.

PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

the most common cause of death in the United States. The authors of the study, led by Dr. Robert M. Califf, MD, of the University of California, San Francisco, note that the use of statins to lower cholesterol levels has been associated with a reduction in the risk of death from heart disease. However, the authors note that the use of statins has also been associated with an increase in the risk of death from cancer. The authors conclude that the use of statins should be carefully monitored in patients with a history of cancer.
