"Committed, creative people are the only way to change the world"

- Seth Godin

Ingaged Creative Productions Inc. (Ingaged) is a value-driven, Indigenous owned and operated integrated marketing, events and communication firm that harnesses international insights to create local results. Our multidisciplinary team is committed to resilient, community-led solutions that generate positive, measurable change through engagement.

Elevating Results through Content Strategy, Creation and Delivery

At Ingaged, we excel at creative planning. Whether we are working with your organization's stakeholders or key influencers, we will meet the needs of the occasion. If you are planning a national event, a local conference with out-of-town guests, or meeting with trusted advisors, you can expect the very best from our team. By working with Ingaged to lead your event, you'll have detail-oriented partners with formative experience in tourism and hospitality, allowing us to coordinate logistics for any size meeting or event. Our interdisciplinary team are experts in generating and maintaining momentum leading up to the event date, the big day, and after its conclusion.

Convince and Convert: Your Integrated Communications Agency

As a people-driven business, we are determined to make and maintain a significant impact. Our mission, vision and values reflect our desire to connect people with communities and create better places to work, live and play. As an Indigenous business, we seek to build sustainable capacity by working with our client and their teams. Our team has the experience to excel in every aspect of event planning and design. From the logistics of hospitality to media and press relations, we provide unique insights to make every part of the process seamless, saving you time, energy and resources for your own organization. With Ingaged, you will benefit from a close-knit team and network which enables us to provide effective, real time solutions that ultimately lower cost and enhance engagement.
