

Encapsulation Cleaning

Ideal For Commercial Carpet Cleaning Projects!

Encapsulation cleaning is mainly conducted in big commercial areas like office buildings law firms, hotels, casinos and malls - areas that have heavily used traffic lanes. This method is often chosen due to it being easy, cost effective and providing fast drying time. The encapsulation method uses a liquid cleaning agent that contains polymers.

The encap chemical is applied onto the carpet and is set to dry for approximately 2 to 3 minutes. The encapsulator is brushed in by the counter rotating brush machines, allowing the brushes to get deep into the carpet to loosen the dirt from the fibers. As the carpet dries, the F1000 encapsulates all the dirt and soil from the fibers, crystallizes and holds it in suspension. The remaining crystals are picked up by the cleaning machine with its "No Vac Technology" or simply with the use of a vacuum cleaner for fast and efficient removal. This method is becoming increasingly popular and accepted, not only in commercial settings, but also in residential. Steam cleaning, shampoo or other methods of the like leave behind wet areas which require more time to dry. And most likely causes wicking on the carpet (the removed stains and spots to re-appear after drying) and leaves an unpleasant smell (due to the moisture)!
