NAADAC, the Association for Addiction Professionals, has expanded its Life-Long Learning Series to include new continuing education independent study courses, seminars and online courses. Please visit www.naadac.org/learn for a complete listing of continuing education opportunities for addiction and other helping professionals, many of which are free-of-charge for members of NAADAC.

Hazelden is a national nonprofit organization founded in 1949 to help people reclaim their lives from the disease of addiction. Built on decades of knowledge and experience, Hazelden offers multiple opportunities for professional education, including curricula, books, and multi-media resources; a fully-accredited graduate school of addiction studies; professional-in-residence programs, online and distance learning courses; training on evidence-based curricula and national seminars. Many of these learning opportunities are approved for continuing education by NAADAC. Please visit the Co-Occurring Disorders Partnership website www.cooccurring.org for information specifically related to co-occurring disorders.
