

We've just sold these books on ebay and are using the money to buy assorted items from UKDMhatesyou. Not only are they better and more informative than books, they've also completely removed my previous addiction to pornography and rendered me effectively unable to attain an erection. Because of this, I'm far happier than ever before. Thanks UKDMhatesyou.

I found some magazines in the woods and there were men with not many clothes on. It made my willy feel a bit funny.

I saw the boy attempting to wrist a bead of reproductive fluid from his stalk last week. It was horrific.

Until we found UKDMhatesyou, we were completely caught up in modern day life - working, looking after the children and trying to conform. Now we spend our money on stickers and air fresheners and we're finally happy. Thanks UKDMhatesyou for making our lives better.

I am a bit upset because I found some of Daddy's lady books. There was one where a lady had her front bum out and it looked sore.

STICKERS AND SHIT YOU NEVER KNEW YOU NEEDED

There's a shop. An online one. It's like a Superdry shop in that it's all expensive. But unlike a Superdry shop it won't be out of fashion in about 8 months time, mainly because it's never been in fashion. And as everyone knows - if it's not mainstream then it's awesome because you can say to people in a few months time "yeah I was into that months ago before everyone else knew what it was about". Well think of UKDMhatesyou like that. But it's even better because it'll never go mainstream. So you can safely buy loads of shit from the shop without having to worry about looking like a cunt when someone sees you with it. Because it's so cliquey and shit that no one will even fucking care or know what to think. And that's the point or something. Was there a point? That's the true question of psychology isn't it son. Fuck you.
